In this project, I created the website superuser, and link between my HTML page and homepage. In addition, I made the sample models based on team discussion, and my teammates refined these models.

I completed the links between base html file and the extended html file, so users can see the most recent data on the base webpage. Most of the time I looked for materials about how to extract desired data from database and insert them into correct position of the webpage template. Roughly I made 40% of contribution to this project.
